MRS. TAYLOR HONORED WITH SHOWER

Mrs. Hollman Taylor, a recent bride, was honored Friday evening at a shower given by several of her friends at the home of Mrs. J. W. Kendrick.

Choice summer flowers carrying out a color scheme of yellow and white, were used in decoration. Standard baskets and two containers of flowers were placed at intervals throughout the rooms used for entertaining.

In the dining room the table, covered with an imported linen cloth, was centered with a crystal punch bowl, around which were clusters of small yellow flowers intermingled with fern. Trifle candle holders with slender white tapers were placed at either end of the table and their glow shed a soft light over the lovely scene. Sandwiches, nuts and mints were served from silver trays.

Mrs. Maxwell Reeves, sister of the bride, received the guests at the door. Standing to receive were Mrs. J. W. Kendrick, Mrs. Hollman Taylor, Mrs. Arkey Johnson, mother of the bride; Mrs. Curry Taylor, mother of the groom; Mrs. Ralph Barr of Atlanta, Miss Carolyn English, and Mrs. Harold Watkins, of Elba.

Right With God

Lesson for July 24, 1949

"GET RIGHT WITH GOD" is an expression which has been sometimes used by people. It is not a course or cheap idea. It is the most important thing you can do. Think what it means to be wrong with God. That means to be out of harmony with his will, going "across the grain" of reality, the old Greeks used to say. To be wrong with God means to be a rebel against reality, to have the power of the sun, right with God, and so to be headed for sure destruction. Wrong with God, you cannot win. Right with God, you cannot lose. To be right with God means to be in line with the purpose that runs through all things; it is the simple language of the Bible, to live as a child of God.

There are two ways in which man can come into line, so to speak, with God. One is by being whipped into line, and the other is by a free act of will. The poet of the 2nd Psalm says his readers are not to be like mules or colts broken and controlled by their masters. But they do not understand that going on, and if left to themselves they would never serve. They have to be caught, harassed and driven. But God does not want to treat humans beings like that. Getting right with God is not a business of getting into harness, being beaten into walking on the right road.

That is not God's way. He pleads with us through his inspired poet: Be not as mules—be men!

THE short good Bible word for being wrong with God is Sin. The very first step toward being right with God is to see yourself as you are. No one ever went to a doctor till he at least suspected he was sick. No one ever went to school of one record who thought he knew everything. And to one will come to God who thinks he is as good as his own. When life seems twisted and rotten, we make all sorts of excuses for ourselves, we lay the blame on our parents or our friends or the social and economic system in which we live (doubtless all these have a share in creating our trouble), but we hate to look at ourselves in the mirror of truth.

This comes first: recognizing our own weakness, not just weakness but wrongness. When we reach the point where we can say with the Psalmist, "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me," then we are on the right road.

There are two things we never hear about in the Bible. One is that God never forgave anyone who did not repent, and the other is that he refused to forgive any one who merely regretted that a wrong was done; still less regretting being caught. Repentance, the kind the Bible describes (as in these Psalms for example), means a complete change of attitude, it means coming over on God's side and seeing sin the way he sees it, seeing life the way he sees it.

Some human "forgiveness" may be like that, but not God's. His forgiveness is based on real repentance, and the aim of it is to save the sinner from his sin.

Plenteous in Mercy THE Psalmist saw clearly what kind of God we have. He is not like the holder of a mortgage waiting till the first time some payment is deferred gives him a chance to pounce down and evict his tenant. We are no criminals against whom God is prosecuting an attorney, trying to pile up evidence against us "if it was possible, mark iniquities, who shall stand?" We are children, lost and wandering children, rebellious and disobedient children, wayward still children; and God holds open the door of mercy.

Artist Finds Nepal Full of Contrasts

On Strange Journey

NEW YORK—Artist Charles Baskerville traded two days over high mountain passes to get into Nepal.

Admission to the kingdom on the northeastern frontier of India is "by invitation only." But the country lined with paved roads and plenty of American-made automobiles.

"They carry in the automobiles on the heads of coolies," Baskerville said. "There are no railroads."

Baskerville, who just returned from his strange expedition, was the first western artist in history to be admitted to the country, and he made his manners by painting portraits of the maharajah and the king.

"I found the maharajah world and charming," Baskerville went on. "He's the prime minister and he's the real ruler of the country. He spoke English fluently and sat for me in flowing bird-of-paradise headress. He had a bunch of grapes were dangling over his ear, but they were rubies. As for the maharajah, he has been out of the country to Calcutta twice, but the all the time."

To entertain his royal hosts while doing their portraits, Baskerville had a large mirror at an angle, so they could see what he was doing. They were fascinated.

"The maharajah made me open the country to industrialization," said Baskerville. "He thinks no place is safe from invasion now, because of paratroops."

He forces factories rising in the midst of the Nepal valley, a big, haunted tropical paradise given over to cotton, wheat and rice.

"I was given seven acres," Baskerville went on. "They gave me a private house and plenty of servants. But I was under constant surveillance, more for my own protection than anything else. Sometimes I was almost swarmed by friendly mobs. I went everywhere and painted everything. One day 25,000 Hindus came over the mountains and swam in the Bhagavathi river—sort of the Ganges of Nepal—and considered holy."

Mrs. John Pierce, Messrs. Roy Ned, James and Larry Pierce, and Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Sexton returned from Orlovista, Fla., Monday where they spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Bragg. Master Ray Bragg, who had been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, returned home.

He Never Learned

It was quite a surprise to the absentminded professor's colleague to learn that the professor once had been in love. The thought simply hadn't occurred to him.

"I'll tell me about it," he asked the professor.

"It was a long courtship," the other replied, rather sadly. "And finally I worked up enough courage to propose to her. You can imagine my surprise and delight when she accepted me."

"But something went wrong?"

"Yes, I went to visit her again a few days later and had forgotten all about the proposal and her acceptance. Unfortunately, I proposed again."

PROOF ENOUGH

Four Indians hopped into their old auto and sped into town for a big time. After considerable merrymaking with fire-water trimmings they piled back into the car and started back. After bumping along for a few miles, one Indian observed, "Well, we're getting near the reservation."

"How do you know?" asked one.

"S'easy," answered the first. "We're hitting more Indians."

COMPLAINT

"Daddy," sobbed Jessica as she ran crying into her father's arms. "Mommy just drowned one of my kittens."

"Your kitten too bad," said her father consolingly. "But maybe she had to do it."

"No, she didn't," she sobbed. "She drowned me I could."

Meaty Subject

A woman went on a diet. After four weeks she and her friend walked into a butcher shop.

"Cut me off exactly twenty-four pounds of meat, please."

"The butcher cut the meat."

"Is that exactly twenty-four pounds?"

"That's exactly twenty-four," said the butcher. "Are you going to take it with you or shall I send it?"

"No, I just want to show my friend what losing twenty-four pounds looks like in one piece."

Nothing to It

Shopper: How much are your tomatoes?

Grocer: Thirty-five cents.

Shopper: Did you raise them yourself?

Grocer: Yes, they were thirty cents yesterday.

REASONABLE

The young governess was pushing the baby carriage along a shady park path when a policeman walked up to her.

"Fine looking baby, that," he said, to make conversation, "how old is he?"

"He'll be two next week," she said.

"He doesn't look that old," the officer said.

"No," answered the girl, "you see, he was very young when he was born."

Dim Outlook

When John Barrymore played in stock companies he arrived in a small town to play a part in a one night stand. He had arrived a little earlier than he had expected to so he walked down Main Street to pass the time. As he strolled past a vegetable stand he stopped to chat with the proprietor.

"Are there any forms of amusement in this town?" he asked.

"If you care to wait until tonight," replied the proprietor, "I think there will be a play put on at the Orpheum."

"You think there will be?"

"Well, there must be. The way you folks around here have been buying pie tomatoes it couldn't be anything else."

Destination Known

A husband was dressing and couldn't find his collar button.

"You're the most careless man I ever met in my life," said his wife. Here's your collar button. Why don't you put it in one spot? Every morning it's always 'Where's my collar button?'

Next morning the husband came to the breakfast table mumbled. "What's the matter?" asked his wife.

"I swallowed my collar button."

"Well, at least for once you know where it is."
